CHANGE IN PARCEL POST RULING SOON

LIMIT OF PARCELS' WEIGHT IN 1ST OND 2ND ZONE WIL BE RAISED TO 20 POUNDS.

On and after Aug. 15, 1913, the limit of weight of parcels of fourth class, merchandise, for delivry in the first and second zones, will be increased from 11 to 20 pounds. Parcels weighing 4 ounces or less are charged with 1 cent per ounce, regardless of distance. Parcels exceeding 4 ounces in weight will be five cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional 2 pounds or fraction when mailed for local delivery, and 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound when for delivery at other offices in the first or any office within the second zone, the postage being the same for al offices of delivery in the first and second zones except the local office.

To give the public some idea of the territory included within the first and second zones the local office suggests that by referring to a map, including Illinois ,Iowa, Wisconsin and Indiana, and using Dixon as the cencenter, draw a circle which will strike Springfield, Ill., and which will also be near South Bend, Ind., Portage, Wis., Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Keokuk, Iowa and Danville, Ill. The towns mentioned are within the second zone and packages addressed to them not exceeding 20 pounds in weight and complying with the ordin ary parcel post regulations, may be mailed. If any town to which a person desires to send parcels is near the circles suggested it would be well to call at the office and make sure that the town is within the second zone before making up the packake, as towns may not be shown in identical positions on the different maps.

VAN IS AFTER THE AUTO SPEED FIENDS

DECLARES HE WILL STOP ALL SCORCHING IN WEST FELLOWS ST.

Commissioner J. D. VanBibber is angry. In fact it is doubtful if the north side commissioner's temper has been so aroused since he assumed office, and the automobilits are the object of his ire. Their use of West Fellows street pavement is the occasion for his feelings and he has vowed that that street shall not henceforth be used as a speedway.

Mr. VanBibber stated that recently many auto drivers have exhibited the utmost disregard for all laws regarding speed and public safety in driving on that thoroughfare and many complaints have been made to him. In some cases in which automobiles have narrowly missed running down women and children.

The north side official delivered his ultimatum this morning when he stated that he would stop the dangerous sport if he had to lay in ambush and watch for violators of the law. He promises that inasmuch as he has warned a number of drivers he will cause the arrest of every person who drives beyond a reasonable rate of speed on that street hereafter.

SULZER TO FIGHT TO LAST DITCH

GOVERNOR IS TO IGNORE TRIAL FOR IMPEACHMENT—COURT TO SETTLE AFFAIR.

EXECUTIVE'S WIFE IS ILL

Woman Collapses Following "Confession" Made at Eleventh Hour in Effort to Save Her Husband — Trial for September 18.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 14—Special to Telegraph—The illness of Mrs. Wm. Sulzer, wife of the governor of New York, is so serious as to be regarded as critical. Two additional specialists were summoned today from New York to attend her.

Governor Sulzer, deposed by the indictment arrived at yesterday, when the lower house of the state legislature impeached him, and Lieu tenant Governor Glenn, are both attempting to run the state government and serious results may follow.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Following his impeachment by the assembly of the New York legislature, Governor Sulzer announced his determination to resist any attempt to remove him from office. He will refuse to recognize Lieut. Gov. Glynn as acting governor and use every weapon in his power to retain office until his term ends.

The governor's plan of resistance to the effort to oust him embraces an appeal to the courts when such may become necessary, probably through mandamus proceedings. He intends to attempt to exercise all the functions of governor, including the pardon right if desirable, so long as he remains within the state during the remainder of his term or until stopped by the courts.

Will Fight to Last Ditch.

In short, Governor Sulzer will refuse to recognize the impeachment proceedings and may refuse to appear before the court of impeachment for trial. He bases his program chiefly on the ground that the assembly had no constitutional right to consider impeachment at its extraordinary session.

As a part of his program Governor Sulzer will continue to issue instructions to state troops and the naval militia as commander-in-chief of the heads of the various state departments under his direction and will attempt to occupy the executive chamber daily.

Meantime Mrs. Sulzer's condition became so serious that Governor Sulzer wired to New York for a specialist on nervous diseases. He told his advisers, it was said, that under no circumstances would he allow Mrs. Sulzer to testify at his trial.

It was said, on the other hand, that Mrs. Sulzer insisted hysterically that she be allowed to testify in her husband's behalf.

It was said Mrs. Sulzer collapsed owing to the strain incident to her "confession" that it was she, not the governor, who speculated with campaign funds.

One Legislator Resigns.

Another development was the resignation of Howard Sutphin, a Democrat, as member of the assembly from New York, who voted against the impeachment of Sulzer. This was filed with the secretary of state. It was said that Sutphin expected to be appointed to a position in Queens county.

Expect Clash Today.

So far as could be learned no attempt was made by Lieutenant Governor Glynn to exercise the functions of chief executive, but there was every indication that there would be a clash of authority today, when both men appear at the capitol.

The lieutenant governor, asked what action he proposed to take, said there would be "no circus or military maneuvers about occupying the executive chambers; the law is supreme."

Calls Impeachment Court.

Senator Wagner, presiding pro tempore of the senate, called a meeting of the court of impeachment for Wednesday, September 18, at noon. He also announced that the senate would appoint a day for the trial of Governor Sulzer "in due time."

Assembly Votes to Impeach.

William Sulzer, governor of New York, was impeached by the lower house of the legislature after an all night session, by a vote of 79 to 45, on charges of having diverted campaign contributions to his private use and having made under oath false statements as to his campaign receipts.

An eleventh hour declaration on the part of the governor's wife that she had diverted some of his campaign contributions to the purchase of stock because she felt the household needed money failed to prevent impeachment.

Mrs. Sulzer Faces Sacrifice.

Mrs. Sulzer must take the witness stand in her husband's behalf before the court of impeachment, tell her story in detail and submit to examination by hostile lawyers, or take the hazard that the impeachers will prove their case, the governor's friends believe. Either her reputation or her husband's, these friends fear must suffer. They say she will take the stand if she has no other choice. They add that she besought the governor a week ago to permit her to tell her story to the public.

Articles Contain 4,000 Words.

Articles of impeachment, covering 4,000 words and embracing the findings of the Frawley investigating committee in substance, lay ready for presentation in the desk of Democratic Leader Levy hours before the organization trusted its impeachment resolution to a roll call. With the adoption of this resolution and the naming of a committee, headed by Aaron I. Levy, to prepare the articles, a recess was taken. Mr. Levy and his associates went through the formality of retiring, to reappear within an hour, and sent the articles to the speaker's desk with a resolution that they be adopted.

A roll call showed the adoption of the articles by a vote of 79 to 32. A committee was appointed to acquaint the senate with the assembly's findings at the meeting of the senate

After the adoption of the articles of impeachment the assembly passed a resolution appointing nine managers to conduct the impeachment proceedings on behalf of the lower house. The managers are under the chairmanship of Assemblyman Levy and include five other New York city Democrats.

SAYS NEW LAW WILL MAKE FINE FISHING

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN DEVINE RETURNS FROM MEETING AT SPRINGFIELD.

Representative John P. Devine is home from Springfield, where he attended the meetings of the state game and fish commission and to urge that Rock river from its mouth to the Wisconsin state line be set off as a state fish preserve, notice of which action on the part of the commission was announced in last evening's Telegraph.

In a short interview with a Telegraph representative this afternoon Mr. Devine stated that the action of the commission means a great deal to Rock river, for with the prohibition of fishing with anything but a hand line or rod and line the taking of thousands of good fish from the river will be stopped and within a very short time the stream will be well stocked with such fish as will bring joy to the angler's' hearts.

The law prohibiting fishing with anything but hand line or rod and line will become effective as far as Rock river is concerned just as soon as the fish commission publishes official notice that the stream has been set aside as a fish preserve and from that date the prosecution of those who use seines, nets, traps, outlines, etc., in the waters of the river or any of its tributaries will commence. The fish clubs along the river will assist in prosecuting offenders and the stream will be patrolled often with motor boats.

FIRE THREATENED THE FAMOUS PINES

REPORT WEST OREGON WAS IN DIRE DANGER FROM BLAZE

What might have bees a serious fire and resulted in the destruction of the Pine tract, west of Oregon, took place recently. The sparks from a passing freight coming in contact with the dead grass and leaves caused the fire which for a time threatened to destroy the pine forest. It started to the south and east of the tract and burned over about ten acres before it was extinguished close to the edge of the pine forest. It is believd that had it once got started among the pine needles and grass that it would have been impossible to extinguish it with the means of fighting it at hand. As it was, it is believed no damage was done. As soon as the word reached Polo, more than a dozen men hurried out and joined with the farmers in fighting the blaze. It was fortunate that a sufficient number of men could be gathered to fight the flames and which were extinguished with so little damage otherwise The Pines might have been only a memory.

JACOB LAUFF VICTIM OF BAD ACCIEDNT

NEARLY COOKED IN STEAM AND DRIVES OWN CAR 15 MILES TO A DOCTOR.

Jacob Lauff of Hahnaman township, Whiteside county, had a narrow escape from being scalded to death Tuesday, the result of steam rushing from the boiler into the fire box of his traction engine while he was in the fire box. Lauff noticed that water was escaping from the boiler into the fire and after pulling the fire from the box he crawled into the fire box to repair what he believed was a damaged plug. While at work the steam from the boiler rushed into the box, the pressure being 35 pounds.

Is Badly Scalded.

Mr. Lauff realized his danger and hid his face in his arms while trying to escape. Fellow employes rushed to his rescue and in attempting to pull him from the fire box his arms caught in the door and in this manner he was held in the fire box tempest for fully three minutes. during which time the steam poured out of the boiler and his face was being slowly cooked.

Drives Car to Walnut.

The nearest doctor was at Walnut, fifteen miles away. Quickly his face was bandaged and he climbed into his own car and personally drove to the office of the Walnut surgeon, where relief was quickly administered and his scalded face was dressed. It will be some time before he returns to work.

Mrs. Martin left the boy after he had been with him for some time, and returned to her husband in Sterling. She later became too friendly with a Prophetstown man by the name of Glass, who committed suicide when Mr. Martin sued him for $10,000 for alienation of his wife's affections.

TELLS OF EXPERIENCE WITH BLACK FLEET

DR. AND MRS. Z. W. MOSS WERE IN SHIP "FIRED UPON" IN WAR PLAY.

WERE ATTACKED IN THE NIGHT

Were in Their Stateroom When Air Was Split by Thunderous Reports From U. S. Guns.

Mrs. Z. W. Moss who, with her husband is visiting in th east, writes a very interesting letter to her parents, Maj. and Mrs. O. J Downing of this city, telling of their experience with the "black fleet," the U. S. squadron which has been operating along the Atlantic coast lately, testing coast defenses and the possibility of a foreign squadron gaining access to eastern ports unknown to the government.

The letter was written from the Checkly hotel at Prout's Neck, and speaking of the trip by steamer to the resort Mrs. Moss says:

About midnight, as we were all nug in our staterooms all of a sudden a thunderous report arose over the ocean. It was rapidly succeeded by another and another, and when it became very noisy I ventured to peek out through the window and here, upon the vast expanse, I could see searchlights playing upon our ship and several others. I did not come to a relaization that there were other curious ones until I looked along the line of port holes to see heads of all descriptions, mostly belonging to women. It was very light, for a search light stayed on us constantly.

In the morning we discovered, after an interview with the pilot, that it was the "Black Fleet" firing upon us, under command of Gen. Barry and Col. Haan, who were playing at war. The pilot said they would steal up across our path all in darkness, and then flash their lights in a way he didn't enjoy, but they seemed to immensely enjoy the sport.

HERE LOOKING FOR CANVASSING CREW

E. E. WHITE HERE YESTERDAY HOPING TO CAUSE ARRTST OF YOUNG MAN.

E. E. White, Illinois agent for the L. D. Silver company, manufacturers of sanitary household articles, was in Dixon yesterday and this morning looking for a fellow whom he gave the right to work two certain cities some time ago, which right that person violated, according to Mr. White's claims, by engaging a crew of solicitors and starting out for a wholesale canvass of the entire state.

Mr. White stated this morning that some time ago he had given the young fellow he is after who was a college student in search of employment for the summer, the right to work in Pekin and Galesburg. Shortly after transferring that right the state agent learned that his appointee had engaged a dozen young fellows to work for him and started a canvass of the state.

He immediately started on the trail and finally landed four of the solicitors at Kewanee Monday and another at Mendota Tuesday. He then came to Dixon, which city was recently canvassed by the crew, but learned the men had worked here but two days and had gone. The employers of Mr. White, howevr, have been aiding him during his search and this morning he learned that his quarry had been arrested at Bloomington and was being held there pending his arrival. Accordingly Mr. White left for that city today.

ART OF MAKING ESKIMO ICE CREAM

Eskimo ice cream would not, of course, please the palate of those accustomed to the American delicacy but to the Eskimo maiden it passesses all the lure of creams, sherbets or ice cream sodas. With us sugar in the process of digestion turns to fat and fat into body fuel. The Eskimo, having no sugar, yearns for fat, and it comes with the taste of sweets.

The making of ice cream is quite a task. The native women must have a mixture of oils from the seal, walrus and narwhal. Walrus and seal blubber is frozen, cut into strips and pounded with great force so as to break the fat cells. The mass is now placed in a stone pot and heated to the temperature of the igloo, when the oil slowly separates from the fibrous pork like mass. Now tallow from the suet of the reindeer or the musk ox is secured, cut into strips and given by the good housekeeper to her daughters, who sit in the igloo industriously chewing it until the fat cells are crushed. The masticated mass is placed in a long stone pot over the oil flame and the tallow reduced from it is run into the fish oil of the walrus and seal previously prepared.

This forms the body for the ice cream. For flavoring the housewife selects a variety of bits of cooked meat, moss, flowers and grass. Anticipating the absence of moss and grass in the winter the natives, during the hunting season, take the stomachs of the reindeer and musk ox which are shot, masses of partly digested grass which is preserved for winter use. This, which has been frozen and is now chipped into fragments, thawed and with bits of the cooked meat is added to the mixture forms a paste the color of pistache with occasional spots like crushed fruit. The mixture is lowered to the floor of the igloo which in winter is always below the freezing point and into it is stirred snow water. The churned composite gradually brightens and freezes as it is beaten. When completed it looks very much like ice cream, but it has the flavor of cod liver oil, with a similar odor. Nevertheless it has nutritive qualities vastly superior to our ice cream and stomach pains rarely follow an engagement.

DANCING SCHOOL

"It doesn't seem to me that that's a very good report card," Bobby's father said judicially one evening after dinner. "Your history work is very poor and your deportment mark is disgraceful."

"Nobody's good in hist'ry," Bobby explained. "Even Mamie Kelly's mark is something fierce. It's that new teacher. She don't know yet who's the good ones that she has to mark high, and besides she's sore because she caught me whispering. Honest, everybody whispers in her room except Nellie Foster, and she doesn't 'cause she says she's always sorry afterward.

"I was mad that day 'cause Susie Herrick came up to our room. That's enough to make any feller mad. How'd that girl get up to our room for keeps when everybody knows she was always a whole year behind? They'd oughter made her a mid-year instead of sticking her into our room. Billy's awful sore at it."

"You've missed the point, Bobby. It's a question of marks, not of likes and dislikes."

"Well, nobody likes her. All anybody's got to do it to remember back how stingy she always was with candy and things. Why, she never'd give a feller any, unless it was Jimmy. That's 'cause Jimmy's always at her house after school. He walks home from school with her every day and that makes me tired. We can't even get him to play indoor ball or go to a nickel show on account of him having dates. You see, he goes to dancing school where she goes. It makes me tired."

"This is the third time I've had to speak about your history mark."

"I guess it'll be some better now," Bobby assured his father. "We've got to the war now and it's real interesting. Was your father in the revolution or in the civil war?"

"The civil war."

"That's what I told Jimmy and he said I was away off. He said there ain't anybody living that was in the civil war. He's terrible in hist'ry."

"He must be a comfort to you."

"Who, Jimmy? I should say not. Sam's a lot better'n Jimmy. Me and Billy and Sam are getting up a swell crowd to go on a picnic next summer. We've ast three already. We got to have it early so's to get ahead of people's going away. You can't get Sam to talk about it, he's so crazy over dancing school. Did you ever go to dancing school?"

"Long ago. Do you think Bobby, that you would be helped any if you recited your history lesson to me before you went to school in the morning?"

Bobby's face fell. "Maybe," he said, dubiously. "If I have to."

"Of course, it would be very interesting to me," his father said, with deep irony. "But if you don't think you'd enjoy it we need not go to work at it yet."

"You'll have to study it a good deal harder for me than for your teacher," his father warned him. "And you've got to remember it from day to day."

"I don't know about that," Bobby said. "I never do remember. Mamie Kelly's the only one that ever does."

"Don't you hate to be beaten by a girl?"

"She doesn't beat me in anything else. She's fierce in spelling and she ain't no good in arithmetic now that she goes to dancing school. It ain't the dancing that hurts; it's the standing around and talking with the fellers and not studying at home."

"I don't see that it makes an difference to you what Mamie Kelly does."

"It makes a lot of difference," Bobby assured him. "When she doesn't know her lesson teacher gets sore at all of us and that's the way I get low marks. Anyhow, it's one way. She says, 'Everything goes wrong this morning,' when she begins with Mamie Kelly and doesn't get anything but a lemon. Mamie Kelly doesn't mind what marks she gets. She's got a cinch."

"That depends on how you look at it."

"Well, her mother has her take music lessons and she can play some classy things. And then, of course, she goes to dancing school—everybody does. But she's almost as stingy as Susie Herrick."

"Maybe she isn't stingy when you know her better."

"Better!" Bobby cried. "Better! I don't want to know her better. That's the only reason I don't want to go to dancing school."

"Are there any reasons why you do?"

"I should say so. Bushels."

"What, for instance?"

"Well—er—I do."

"Any others?"

"Y-yes, but—well, everybody goes and it's a lot of fun."

"So I've heard. How about that history?"

"Well, I'll recite to you every day. Honest, I'll have a better mark next time."

"Very well. When do you want to begin dancing school?"

"It doesn't make any difference," Bobby said with a tremble of eagerness in his voice. "But if you don't care, of course, the sooner the quicker to get your money's worth. I don't see the use of waiting till after Christmas, do you? Not that it makes any difference to me, of course, but could I begin next week?"

WHEN ALL SIGNS FAIL

By CARRIE CLARKE.

Helene Ramsey was extremely superstitious, and had every omen of good or bad luck sytematically catalogued in the pigeonholes of her memory, and her days were spent trying to offset any calamity predestined by the ill omen. Strung about her neck were several Egyptian amulets of good fortune; a four-leafed clover reposed in the left shoe; a rabbit's paw occupied the inside pocket of her jacket; on her right hand was worn a moonstone ring; the god Billiken grinned his approval of her devout worship at the shrine of luck from his throne on her dressing table.

Helene was a fair vision as she stood before the oval mirror drawing a comb through her wavy bronze hair. She was dressing to receive Billy Paxton, who came twice a week to "bring a box of candy and pay his respects to mother," as Helene would tell you should you display curiosity enough to ask her.

The last hairpin was finally placed in position, and Helene raised the comb to arrange a few refractory tresses, when it fell from her hand to the floor. "A disappointment," she said almost tearfully, and, going to the door, called: "Betty! Betty, come here, I want you!"

"Her younger sister appeared. "Please, dear pick up that comb for me."

Betty did as she was bid, grumbling the while. "You and your old superstitions! I thought by your tragic voice something dreadful had happened, or I never would have come." Then she left the room with this parting shot of sarcasm: "Be careful tonight, Helene, dear, for it is new moon. Look at it over your right shoulder—or is it the left? It keeps one busy to remember correctly all the unfailing signs. I'll not see you any more this evening, so pleasant dreams. I am going to read."

Helene donned her frock and looked critically at her reflection, and knew that she was looking better than usual. Blue always was becoming, and Billy admired this more than any of her other gowns. Helene wondered if he cared very deeply for her. It would be such a satisfaction to know, for during the three years of their friendship Billy had never once become sentimental enough to declare his devotion, but week after week maintained that comfortable, intimate, heart-stony affection which is very gratifying, but which no girl of normal discrimination could mistake for love. Helene had reached a stage where Billy puzzled her, and she wanted to know what thoughts, concerning herself, lurked behind his gray eyes and placid countenance. In the midst of these reflections the doorbell rang, and she descended as the maid ushered Billy Paxton to the drawing room. Helene found him ensconced in his customery armchair, but he arose to greet her as she entered. After the usual pleasantries had been exchanged, he said: "Do you mind going for a walk, Helene? The night is glorious as only a June, rose-scented night can be. I want you to come unprotestingly to wherever I care to lead you. Do you consent?"

"Is this to be an adventure that you speak so gravely, sir knight? If so, I trust myself entirely to your protection and we will start immediately." And they suited the words to action.

When she reached the open Helene scanned the heavens for the moon, and saw it over the wrong shoulder; then a black cat ran across the path and an owl hooted mournfully in the sycamore tree. A queer creepy sensation danced up and down Helene's spinal vertebrae, and she felt her pocket to see whether the rabbit's foot was there, but it was not. Crossing the park they started the peacocks that had roosted for the night, and these disagreeable fowls rent the peaceful air with their demoniac shrieks.

Helene clutched Billy's arm in frantic terror. "Let us return; I am really frightened."

"Nonsense," said the phlegmatic Billy, "you are coming with me."

On he led her, never pausing until they reached the hedge surrounding a pretty house. Then Billy spoke again. "This is the parsonage, Helene, and I have arranged for the minister to marry us tonight. For a long time I have loved you, but hesitated to tell you because I knew that you would never select a wedding day until all the signs pointed to luck, and that would mean months of waiting, for this is 1913—your objection number one."

"But I don't want to marry you," gasped Helene. "I am afraid."

"O, yes you do, and you must get over your fear. Give me your hand, Helene!"

She tremblingly obeyed, and over the third finger of her left hand he slipped a ring. Helene shuddered as she saw the opal surrounded with diamonds, but somehow the glittering band silenced her misgivings and a strange joy crept into her heart.

They mounted the steps to the veranda and Helene saw the number above the door—it was 1313.

Then Billy clasped her in his arms and kissed her lips and eyes. "Be brave now, dearest, I took this way because I love you and want to prove how foolish your superstitions are. Ours will be a happy marriage, for I mean to make it so."

Helene touched the bell and smilingly said, "This is the time when all signs fail."

The door opened and they passed within. It was Friday, the thirteenth.

He kissed the pretty gals and so bac illi got his goat.
He used a common old crash towel when he would wipe his face;
There were no fancy blotters then a-hangin' 'round the place.
Unfiltered water he consumed; he didn't swat the flies,
The daily bulletin of health he didn't scrutinize.
He didn't pasteurize the milk and it turned out as how
He violated all the rules set down by experts now,
He didn't know about the germs an' that is how, I ween,
That grandpa lived until he was a hundred and fifteen.

Father, Dear Father.

Father, dear father, come home with me now,

And you've got the supper to fix.
The furnace fire's out and the cat's in the milk.
The tea kettle's frozen up tight.
The beds are not made and the hired girl's quit,
Oh, father, come early tonight.
Come home! Come home.

PHIL LOST THE BET

By IDA SHEPLER.

McQuire languidly watched the smoke curl from his cigar, play in weaving circles about his shapely face and head, then float off to the realms of pipe dreams. Presently a dreamy, satisfied smile stole into his blue eyes. He was so sure of her truth, integrity and love for himself. Adorable Lora. He was hastening back to her and their wedding day at steamer speed.

The half closed door of his room let in the sound of voices. It was Ed Rainey and Tom Larkin. McQuire had run into them somewhere abroad. They were coming home on the same steamer.

"Gone, gone bad, isn't he?" Rainey was saying. "Believes that Lora is innocence personified. Doesn't know that she's a good five years or more older than himself. Don't guess that she's out to marry a fortune. Don't know that she's, in turn, been sweetheart to all of us, or anything of that affair of hers and Lambert's, does he?"

McQuire's cigar dropped from his parted lips. The red leaped in an ugly flame to his face. They were talking, these friends of his, of the girl he was to marry. His right hand opened to slap little Rainey fair in his calumniating mouth. Larkin's answer came slowly, between puffs at his pipe: "McQuire is young. She isn't good enough for him, that's only too true. But, Rainey, the girl was only a little reckless, too much of a flirt. Nothing worse. Lambert is a liar. McQuire's a good looker and nobody's fool, if he was born to revel in gold."

"Lora would not marry any man unless he brought her gold?" Rainey still persisted. "Oh, you need not worry about shutting the door; McQuire is on the deck. I saw him go up an hour ago."

McQuire fidgeted and worried about his cabin for an hour after. Not a doubt of Lora's love edged itself in his mind. No one but himself had ever possessed her heart. Of that he was sure.

After awhile the plan he would work to confute these friends came crowding itself into his head. It was neither new or original, but it would do.

Rainey and Larkin found him dull company forthwith. Then its reason came out. He had received a telegram at starting. Hoped it was not so bad as stated. His fortune, to the last dollar, was in jeopardy. He had made some foolish investment. Further he would not talk. Simply moped, smoked and read.

"Rainey, the little sneak, will go straight to Boston and tell Lora," McQuire thought to himself. "Nothing will suit him better. Nothing will suit me better, either."

From New York McQuire wrote a brief letter to Lora:

"My Dearest: I'm viewing the hole where it has all gone down. You no doubt have heard of the Parkinson company crash? The private fortunes they swamped with their own stupendous failure? I have trusted Parkinson as I might have my father, had I one at present. Well, I'm not going to cry over spilled milk. It's done, and can't be helped. I can work for my darling. I have youth, health, strength and love left. You know I studied law. Behold a future Webster in your husband. I cannot wait to see you. Lovingly, Phil."

Rainey was with Lora when she received this epistle. He watched her pretty face turn pale, then flushed.

"Of course it's love in a cottage?" said Rainey.

"Of course it isn't," she flared. "Is it a fact that he was fool enough to trust his immense fortune in the keeping of that company he refers to?"

"Guess he did. He was tolerably frank about the matter. He is playing cheerful to you in this letter. He believes that nothing would separate your love from him."

"What!" she nearly shrieked; "marry a pauper? Bah, he hasn't brains enough to get a first client. Me do kitchen work and make my own clothes for love's sake? Well, hardly."

Phil was nearly a month getting over everything that followed that letter. At the end of that time he was as good as new.

Gladys, Phil's cousin, went calling on Lora, her cousin's late betrothal ring shining on her hand.

It wasn't fitting for Lora to notice this, but she did the lovely bracelets Gladys was wearing. "A gift from Cousin Phil," the girl quite innocently answered.

"I never knew that you had a cousin so fond of you. Seems to me that I heard your cousin lost all his money." Lora's eyes were wide with surprised inquiry.

"Oh, no," Gladys went on, still more innocently; "Phil never lost his money. Not a cent. He was engaged to some girl. I couldn't get him to tell me who. He brought her so many presents from abroad. Then, because one of the friends he same home with bet him, or something like that, his affianced wouldn't marry him if he were to lose his money, wrote her he had lost all. Phil lost the bet, of course, but wasn't it lucky for me?"

THE KITCHEN CABINET

"I TAKE it that knowledge is a pretty poor commodity of itself and by itself. A ship doesn't sail by its cargo. The truths that are not translated into lives are dead truths."
—President Woodrow Wilson.

SOME GOOD EATING.

Here is the ideal summer dessert.

Peach Sherbet.—Put a pound of sugar and a quart of water on to boil twenty minutes, let cool, then add one and a half cupfuls of peach pulp, the strained juice of an orange, and the juice of half a lemon. Freeze.

A Novel Sponge Cake.—The ingredients for this cake are four eggs, a cup of sugar and a cup of flour. Beat the whites very dry and fold in the sugar, a quarter of a cup at a time. Add the yolks one at a time, cutting and folding them in, adding so lightly that the whites will be streaked with yellow. Cut the flour into the mixture in the same way and bake in a slow oven in a buttered pan. Do not stir to remove the streaks, for it will spoil the texture of the cake.

Grilled Chicken and Mushrooms.—Any pieces of cold chicken will serve for this dish. Sprinkle the pieces with red pepper and salt, brush with melted butter and toss in fine bread crumbs. Place in a hot oven, cut the stalks from half a pint of mushrooms, place them in a saucepan with two tablespoonfuls of butter, a dust of mace, pepper, salt, a squeeze of lemon juice, a quarter of a cup of stock or water and a tablespoonful of flour. Cook gently for five minutes, then pour on to small pieces of toast. Prepare the chicken and serve around the toast. Serve hot.

Bacon, Toast and Tomatoes.—Cook very thin slices of bacon until crisp, place on narrow strips of toasted bread. Cook tomatoes in the hot fat and serve with the toast and bacon.

Cucumbers With Brown Sauce.—Peel three or four medium sized cucumbers sliced in halves lengthwise then in halves crosswise. Scrape out the seeds, season each with salt and pepper, and roll in flour; saute in hot drippings until well browned, drain, place in a saucepan and cover with brown stock, simmer until tender. Arrange on toast and pour the sauce over.

Raspberry jam spread between the layers of a plain cake and the top covered with whipped cream, makes a delicious cake to eat fresh.

GRUELS FOR THE INVALID.

For those who have the care of the "What shall I prepare that my patient will enjoy and be able to digest." Gruels are cooked mixtures of flour and grains with water or milk. The milk should not be added until the gruel is thoroughly cooked.

The important point to remember in preparing gruels is that a long time is needed to soften and dissolve the starch of the grains, which is not easily digested unless well cooked.

Gruels should be taken slowly, in order to allow the saliva to act upon the starch and be thoroughly mixed in the mouth.

Cracker Gruel.—Mix together four tablespoonfuls of fine sifted cracker crumbs, a teaspoonful of sugar and a teasponful of salt; cook with a cup of boiling water for two minutes, then add a cup of milk. Serve without straining. This gruel may be more palatable to some if the sugar is omitted.

Indian Meal Gruel.—Blend a tablespoonful of Indian meal, a half tablespoonful of flour, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of cold water and a cup and a half of boiling water. Boil on the back of the stove an houh and a half. Dilute with milk or cream. Strain and serve.

Oatmeal Gruel.—Pound or grind a half cup of oatmeal, put into a tumbler and fill it with water. Stir and pour off the mealy water into a saucepan. Fill the tumbler again, stir and pour off, and repeat as long as the water looks milky. Set the sauce pan on the back of the stove and let the mixture simmer for an hour, or cook in a double boiler two hours. Strain, season with salt and serve. Thin with milk or cream, if too thick.

Good Time Coming.

The longest day of the year has passed, but there is still the day ahead for some of us when we will have to it under the camp tent and watch it rain.—Detroit Free Press.

She Can't Help Wondering

"Bess, my dear! Do you know I could hardly wait for morning to come so I could run over and talk to you. I didn't sleep a wink all night. No, no one is sick, but I've had the most awful experience! You needn't try to guess, for you couldn't in a thousand years."

"Well," she proceeded, "to begin at the beginning, my aunt, who is head milliner at Birney's, copied a Paris hat for me. A Paris hat, I said. Yes, and it's a beauty, too! The model was $50 and mine is just as pretty.

"Then I think I've told you about Fred's cousin Louise that he thinks is so clever and charming. Yes, she is, really. They are own cousins; their mothers were sisters. But, of course, Louise's being brought up so far away and not meeting Fred till they were grown does make a difference. Well, I went over to see her yesterday afternoon and she raved over my hat, called it a perfect dream and tried it on and looked stunning in it. Yes, she's very pretty and she has awfully sweet ways.

"You remember how it rained yesterday about half past four? Oh, yes, you must remember; a nice, soft rain that came down so gently you could hardly hear it. Well, I was just starting from Louise's to Aunt Ruth's and Louise insisted that I should never wear that beautiful hat out in the rain. The rain was coming straight down and was so soft that I thought an umbrella would be all the protection I needed, and, anyway, Aunt Ruth's isn't so very far from Louise's. Why, I was going to Aunt Ruth's to dinner.

"Well, Louise mourned so ever my lovely hat being dragged through the wet that she finally got me worked up, too, and then she hauled out an old morning hat of hers with quills on it and insisted that I wear it. She was so sweet about it that I just had to take her hat.

"What? No, nothing happened to her hat; you guessed wrong, young lady. This is my story and if you want to hear it you let me tell it!

"Let's see, where was I? Oh, yes, just starting for Aunt Ruth's. Well, Fred came in after dinner and said he'd called up our house and mother told him I was at Aunt Ruth's and he explained that he'd come to invite me to go to the theater.

"Oh, I knew it was a horrid night and I told him so, but he said he was blue and cross and a nice, cheerful show would make us forget the weather. Well, my dear, when I went upstairs to get ready I remembered that I'd have to wear Louise's hat and almost fainted! The only consolation was that I knew the weather would never hurt it, but actually when I looked at myself in the glass and thought of my own lovely hat I wanted to stop and cry.

"When I went downstairs I asked Fred if he didn't think he'd better go around to the back door and call for me, but he just laughed. Well, that's sweet of you to say so, but you haven't seen me in that awful hat!

"We were sort of late getting to the theater and I just melted into my seat and got my hat off in a hurry. Yes, it was a pretty good play, and when the curtain went down on the first act I had just about forgotten the weather and that horrid hat and Fred had cheered up and we were having a lovely time.

"Yes, this is where the blow fell! I was looking around at the boxes and I spied Louise in the right-hand stage box with the handsomest looking crowd you ever saw, and, my dear, she was wearing my precious hat!

"Well, maybe you think it is funny, but if it had been your hat she was wearing and you were trying to cover an awful quill thing with a program and a handkerchief, you wouldn't see so much fun in it.

"I choked right in the middle of a sentence and got so red that Fred thought I'd stuck myself with a hatpin.

"Tell him, my dear! You know perfectly well he'd have thought I was a jealous cat. And, anyway, you don't know how gorgeous Louise looked in that hat!

"What? No, he didn't see her and I never said a word. I just sat and waited until I could put Louise's quill affair on my head and sneak home.

"Supper? In that hat? Well, I should say not! But I just know that Louise and her crowd went somewhere and that Louise looked perfectly stunning—in my hat!

"She promised yesterday afternoon to bring my hat home this afternoon when she went driving, and I know I should just die if I had to meet her.

"No, you wouldn't either say anything to her about wearing the hat, because she'd tell Fred, and you know perfectly well a man would never understand. Why, those men wear each other's ties and things and never care a bit.

"No, I told mother this morning that I'd have to go to a very important meeting of the Zetas this afternoon and for her please to see Louise when she comes.

"That's awfully sweet of you, Bess. I knew that you would understand exactly how I felt about it.

"Well, I don't know what to think. I'm afraid I must have a very evil mind, but I just can't help wondering whether Louise's theater party was an impromptu affair or whether she knew she was going when she persuaded me to save my beautiful hat from the weather!"

A Human Match Factory

The body contains phosphorus sufficient to make 483,000 matches. Phosphorus is one of fourteen elements composing the body—divided among bones, flesh, nervous system and other organs. The perfect health of body requires a perfect balance of the elements. These elements come from the food we eat—the stomach extracts and distributes them.

But if stomach is deranged—the balance of health is destroyed and the blood does not carry the proper elements to the different organs, and there is blood trouble—nerve trouble—heart trouble. Pain is the hungry cry of starved organs. Put the liver, stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition into a condition of health. That is just what is done by

OUR MEDICAL TALKS

Dr. Frizelle Explains His Treatment of Gall Stones and Enlarged Bile Ducts

Not uncommonly, cases of enlarged bile ducts are improperly diagnosed as gall stones. When the patients have been induced to submit to operations and some stones found t hey are comforted by the story that they will derive great benefit from the draining of the enlarged gall bladder. True, the operation does give temporary relief in some cases, and the patient will feel better; but, I ask, will it remove the cause of this eslargement and distress?

I say No! And so say all thoroughly well posted physicians and surgeons of known ability.

These gall bladder and bile duct cases are not surgical cases, but should be treated by physiological methods, diet, medicines and electricity, thus removisg the cause and preventing a return of the trouble

If you suffer from any disease of this kind, or any disease of the eye, ear, nose and throat, I shall be pleased to have you call at my office for free examination.

If you need glasses I will guarantee a perfect fit.

I am in my office over Cuontryman's store every Monday and Friday.

DELAY COUNTING WOODMEN VOTE

OFFICIALS DESIRE THAT INSURGENTS BE PRESENT DURING CANVASS

THE VOTE IS VERY SMALL

Due to Insurgents Requesting That Members Refuse to Take Any Part in Referendum

Rock Island, Ill, Aug. 13—E. F. Johnson, a judge in the vote of the Modern Woodmen of America on the rate question, announced today that the counting of votes would not be started until the insurgents were officially represented in order that there might be no question raised later as to the correctness of the results. A Mr. King was to have arrived from Richfield, Ill., today, but up to noon he had not put in appearance. King is one of the leaders among the insurgents of the state.

Vote is Small

Insurgents were urged through various publicty agencies maintained by thir organizations to take no part in the vote on rates, on the ground that a fair submission of the question could not be secured under the present head officers. Consequently the number voting was cut down to perhaps one-fourth or one-third of the total membership of the society. In many cases entire camps withdrew from participation in the referendum.

CALL ISSUED TO NATIONAL BANKS

COMPTROLLER DESIRES MINUTE INFORMATION RELATIVE TO BORROWING

Washington.—The comptroller of the currency has issued a call for a statemest of the condition of all national banks of the United States at the close business on Saturday August 9.

Much additional information is to be obtained from the call made today. The treasury department wants to know how banks in different sections are attempting to relieve the demand for currency. Acting Comptroller Kane issued this statement:

"All banks have been requeste to send in on special forms furnished for that purpose, detailed statements of all money loand to other banks as well as all money borrowed from other banks in the form of re-discounts, bills payable, or in any other manner. The new form will enable the comptroller to more easily determine what sections of the country are in need of additional circulation at stated periods of the year and what banks accommodate their correspondents in such sections and in addition should also enable the comptroller to more easily ascertain what banks borrow is order to meet legitimate discount, and varying conditions, and what banks should be listed as chronic borrowers—that is those who borrow to reloan n normal time."

BABY BORN AMID WANT

PATHETIC CIRCUMSTANCES ATTENDING BIRTH OF CHILD OF ART BOOS

MOTHER WAS LEFT ALONE

Two Little Daughters Have Trouble In Securing Physician to Care For Her

Freeport, Aug. 13—Spending the night at Fred Southwick's camp on the island and leaving his wife, who was in a delicate condition, to be cared for by a 15 year old daughter and three small children, Art Boos, living at the corner of Chicago and Exchange Sts. was forced to return home early today, the last 25 cents in the house being expended so the man could ride home in a taxicab. Shortly after he arrived a child was ushered into the home, amid filth and squalor.

For two hours, two small girls—his daughters—walked the streets, the business streets of Freeport, attempting to persuade physicians to "go and see mamma; she awfully sick." "Mamma" was alone in the house and suffering great pain, but her little daughters continued their search until Dr. Leavy consented to take the case. Other physicians, realizing that no fee would be forthcoming, turned down the appeal of the children

Taking the mere babies in his car, the physician drove to the flat, reaching there shortly after 10 o'clock. He called Officer McCoy, who searched and was finally successful in locating the father. According to information given to Chief of Police Wm. Root today by Dr. Leavy the place is better fittd for a pig pen than for lodging quarters. Conditions are very unsanitary and an investigation will likely be taken up by the health department.

There being no one to assist the doctor in his work, he secured his bride, who was on an auto ride, to aid him. She remained at her post until 3 o'clock this morning and assisted in taking care of the mother and her new born babe.

Mrs. Boos is thirty-two years old and the child born today is her seventh, one daughter being fifteen years old. This daughter cared for an eighteen-month-old child, keeping it in the dark hall until almost two o'clock today.

SEVEN ON LAUNCH DIE

PASSENGERS THROWN FROM CANOPY INTO BAY.

Accident Occurs at Duluth, Minn.—Waves From Tug Rock Boat and Supports Give Way.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 14.—Seven of a total of twenty-three persons in a launch party were drowned in St. Louis bay when a flimsy top used for seats on the launch Dauplaise gave way and the occupants were thrown into the water. The seven bodies were recovered.

The accident occurred after the launch had gone through a drawbridge of the Northern Pacific railway. The tug Sinclair came up behind the launch, causing a heavy swell. The Dauplaise was caught in the swell, and the rocking of the boat caused the supports of the canopy top to give way, throwing fourteen persons seated on it into the water.

As the engineer attempted to reverse the engine the clutch broke, causing the launch to run about 150 feet from those in the water.

Members of the party who were rescued went into hysterics, and were restrained from jumping into the water by the government officials.

TASTE OF COUNTRY GIVES CITY BOYS LIFE

ROCHELLE LOSES ITS FIRST COMPANY OF LADS FROM CHICAGO STREET. WHAT THEY WILL MISS

Rochelle, Aug. 13.—Farmers along the road west of Flagg Center Monday morning could hav seen 25 boys from the Chicaio Boys' club camp going back to the city. Perhaps they were hoping to miss the train. Who can tell?

The small boy has for fifty weeks been looking forward to the time when he will go "campin' agin" and enjoy all the good things of the country. To city boys the experiences of camp life are an education in themselves, and they return wishing they could go "campin" twelve months in the year.

hold of it and a part of it is as fol- an alley with nearby windows, is a cleared space at Clark's large enough to allow a home run, with no ice-wagon or delivery wagon to break up the game.

The swimming pool is changed from a muddy hole, many times only deep enough for a small boy to wade is, to a stream of clear running water.

The fishing hole is a place where the waves do not rock the cork, and the boy eagerly waits its disappearance, for he expects to land a monster, even though it may turn out to be a crab or a turtle.

The country fare, fresh from the garden, does not taste like that displayed on the city vegetable wagon or in front of the grocery store. The milk he drinks is fresh and warm and makes the coffee taste "so good."

The camp-fire is a unique place, and around it the evening devotions are held, gospel songs are sung and heart-to-heart talks given.

Two hundred and fifty boys were given an outing last summer, and 5,754 meals were served. Three camps were conducted. Club No. 1 camping near Belvidere river; Club No. 2 is Floyd Clark's Grove on the Kyte river near Rochelle; Club No. 3 on a beautiful island in the Fox river near Geneva.

STERLING MAY VOTE ON COMMISSION FORM

Sterling Gazette. Following the agitation on the matter covering a long period, a prominent local attorney was today instructed to draw up papers petitioning County Judge Blodgett to order a special election for the purpose of voting on a commission form of government for Sterling. The attorney has been looking up the law on the matter and says the papers will be placed in circulation inside of a week.

BABY DIES.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. England of Grand Detour passed away yesterday. The funeral was held today from the home with burial in Grand Detour cemetery. The death of the little fellow, who was about three months old is very sad and the community extends sympathy to the grief-stricken parents.

BRYAN THEN AND NOW.

Mr. Bryan, who says he can't live on $12,000 a year in Washington, in his Commoner a few years ago strenuously opposed raising the salaries of supreme court justices from $12,000 to $15,000.

In substance the editorial was somewhat as follows, according to someone who has dug it up:

"If you pay a judge $5000 he will live in accordance with the habits of plain people. He will rent a modest house in a quiet quarter of town and live on a simple scal.

"If you raise his salary to $7,500 he will get a more xpensive house asd live among people who adopt the $7,500 scale of living.

"If you raise his salary to $10,000 he will get a more expensive house house and live on a still more costly scale.

"If you give him $12,500 to $15,000 he will spend his summers at a fashionable watering place," etc.

"And thus, by these successive increases of salary our best judges get in the habit of living among the rich people; they breathe the atmosphere of the moneyed classes and in that way, get entirely out of touch with the masses of people, for whom the courts are to hold the even scales of justice."

CHICAGO PAPERS.

A short time ago Hon. George T. Bent, piano manufacturer of Chicago, was invited to deliver an address before the Commercial club. Some members of the club saw Mr. Bent's address and the committee got cold feet and the address was never delivered. The Peoria Star got dress before the Commercial club. lows:

The Chicago Tribune has become intensely socialistic, demagogic, sensational and insincere. Becaue of its old time name and reputation, when it was really serving the people, it is a pity that it should now in its o'd age and dotage, in its osocialistic frenzy and desre to build circulation, become worse than Hearst at his worst. Until late years the Tribune was not often guilty of attacks on the property of us all.

Can anyone cite better or more successful tax dodgers than Victor F. Lawson and his papers, the News and Record Herald, or can any concern worth over $10,000,000 get as low a tax or as cheap leases on the school board land as can the Chicago Tribune?

Yet these papers constantly rant and howl about tax dodgers and bosses and are trying to make it harder for merchants and manufacturers to do business and get business at a profit, by accusing us of being liars, thieves and rascals and by their cries to us to raise wages to our employes and to lower our prices to the public.

Scare and poster type headlines of the sensational and muckraking order you see almost every day in the Tribune and some other papers of Chicago. We used to think the Hearst papers had a monopoly of such work.

The Tribune has become an example not of a free, but of a licensed, muckraking press. It sells its power to politicians whom it can use, and before it supports any politician, it is said, he must agree to do as it wishes.—Dwight Star.

Drawbacks of Matrimony

"This getting married," remarked young Mrs. Allison, isn't all that it's talked up to be!" She picked up her embroidery and resumed operations on a large blue butterfly.

The other embroiderers looked shocked, with the exception of the fluffy haired blonde, who giggled appreciatively. "Is Fred developing dyspepsia?" she inquired with mirthful solicitude. "My dear!" cried young Mrs. Allison, with wide-eyed protest. "Fred can eat anything, I'm happy to say. I ran completely out of ideas about meals day before yesterday, so I had fried soles for dinner, to break the monotony of steak and chops and roast and chops and roast and steak, and roast and steak—"

"That will do!" sternly interrupted the young matron with auburn hair. "That way lies madness. Some of us are housekeepers ourselves, you may remember."

"And," went on young Mrs. Allison, meekly, "Fred ate his sole with positive enjoyment, though I couldn't even bend my own. No, Fred is not dyspeptic."

"Well, then," said the fluffy haired blonde, "he must be getting the club habit."

"Wrong!" said young Mrs. Allison promptly. "Fred doesn't belong to a single club except the Beethoven. He hates smoke and he likes women, and he thinks that men's clubs are little short of relatively clean pigpens. Guess again."

"Well," said the fluffy haired blonde after a judicial pause, "there are only three causes that make a happy married woman sore on matrimony, if you will pardon the phraseology. They are dyspepsia, jealousy and lack of money. Is lack of money the canker that's eating the blush from your damask cheek, or words to that effect?"

Mrs. Allison shook her head again, emphatically. "Nobody has enough money," she said with conviction. "But that's the least of my troubles, and I have as much money as is good for me, no doubt. Besides, a woman's a fool to let money worry her, if it's only a matter of luxuries."

The fluffy haired blonde nodded assent. "Right you are," she said. "And, what's more, there are fewer fools than people would believe when it comes to that. But whatever is the trouble, Celeste?"

Young Mrs. Allison sighed lugubriously. "What I object to in matrimony," she explained, jabbing her needle vigorously into the left wing of the blue insect, "is this sensation of permanence. Married people feel so disgustingly settled in life, and I loathe feeling settled."

Every one smiled.

"Well, times are changing," remarked the auburn haired matron, with a suggestion of scorn. "Do you notice married people feeling so dreadfully settled these days?"

"I mean decent people, of course," corrected young Mrs. Allison concisely. The sense of being hopelessly settled descends upon you when you come down to breakfast the first morning after your honeymoon trip is over, and it continues with you from that time on. When I go to the matinee, or to teas, or to the settlement, guild, or anywhere like that, and see a lot of girls of just my own age, whom I went to school with, and who haven't married—old maids like you"—she indicated the fluffy haired blonde, who rose and bowed profoundly—"and see how positively juvenile and effervescent they look, and how delightfully unsettled they are in their attitude toward the world, I get pessimistic, that's all. I say to myself: 'Brace up, Celeste! You're a married woman, so hurry home or Fred will be there first, and will wonder what keeps you.'"

"I tell you," went on young Mrs. Allison, "you can just reverse what the old negro mammy said about spinsterhood and apply it to matrimony. 'I'se done hyar'd,' she said, 'as hit ain't so bad when yo' quit strugglin'.'"

Everybody laughed and young Mrs. Allison joined in doubtfully.

"By the way, Celeste," remarked the fluffy haired blonde abruptly, "you always used to go south with the Merrits to stay through January. You'll go this year, I suppose?"

"I should say not," answered young Mrs. Allison heatedly. "Do you suppose I'd go away for a whole month and leave Fred, when he simply couldn't go, no matter how badly he might want to? Why, what an idea! Are you crazy?"

There was another chorus of laughter.

"Oh, well," conceded young Mrs. Allison with a smile, "one might as well make the best of one's troubles."

Suspicious Circumstance.

"Is that man a complete cynic?"

"Not a complete cynic," replied Miss Cayenne; "if he were, he would not go to such great and evident pains to think up cynical remarks."

HAVE A SENSE OF MEMORY

Experiments Prove That Horses Are Capable of Remembering Either Pleasure or Pain.

The horse is generally considered a stupid animal, and so he is about many things. But he certainly has a mind of a kind. A correspondent in the Glasgow, Scotland, News, tells of an animal which conveys his majesty's mails from the postoffice to the station, and he is actually capable of calculating particular runs.

It is the practice of his driver to lunch previous to taking away the sixth load of mail and, being rather deficient in molars himself, his horse falls heir to the crusts of his master's "piece." Occasionally, for the delectation of the staff, he endeavors to depart with the sixth load without eating the lunch or handing over the crusts; but his calculating horse cannot be induced, even with chastisement, to leave until the customary feed has been forthcoming.

The same animal on another run enjoys a delicacy in the form of banana skins at the station, and should the supply of skins ever run out, letters would be delayed.

Some horses show by their manners that they don't forget when they have suffered pain from operations, such as firing and docking.

British Union Jack.

The union jack, the national banner of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, is formed out of the combination of the crosses of St. George, of St. Andrew and of St. Patrick, these three crosses being the national banner of England, Scotland and Ireland, respectively. The first union jack, which was introduced by royal proclamation in 1606, three years after the union with Scotland, bore only the crosses of two countries, England and Scotland. This combination was proclaimed in 1707 as the national flag of Great Britain. On the union with Ireland, the cross of St. Patrick, with its four limbs, edged with white on one side, was added.

Sleep Is First Necessity.

A very frequent cause of nervousness in many persons is loss of sleep. It gives rise to headaches and neuralgia, and is mainly responsible for other distressing ailments. The man or woman whose sleep is unduly disturbed as the result of heavy mental work, by night watching at the bedside of the sick or through irregular hours of employment, should endeavor to secure a little refreshing sleep whenever possible in order to make up for the loss sustained. For not only will headaches and other ailments develop from sleeplessness, but the nervous system will soon become considerably deranged as a consequence. So be careful upon this point.

HE KEPT CHICKENS

It was Vantine who laid the trail of powder and applied the match. He did it last April when McQueen was explaining for the fiftieth time that the country place he had just purchased over in Michigan was without exception the greatest bargain and the prettiest spot on earth.

"You are going to keep chickens, of course?" suggested Vantine, in the tone which demands an affirmative answer.

"Why," said McQueen, who up to that minute hadn't thought anything about it at all, "why, yes, of course! We'll have our own fresh eggs. Of course, I am going to have the finest poultry yard in the state! Chickens! Well, I should say so!"

Before he moved his family over to the new home in May McQueen had invited everybody he knew to drop in any time during the summer for a weekend. Everybody was most deeply interested in McQueen's chicken yard, which he had been to busy to see about as yet. It seemed to him that his friends took a malicious delight in slapping him on the back and spreading the news.

"Hello!" they would say, jovially. "Poring over catalogues, I suppose, picking out your chickens and stuff? Why, didn't you know, Chester, that McQueen, here, has a huge chicken farm over in Michigan? Aw, you're just modest, McQueen—you know you have! Fresh eggs at every meal!"

In the face of all this McQueen was in nervously desperate straits when he landed with two friends in the country in June, and his wife, in response to his frantic inquiries, placidly said the chickens had come—at least, six hens had. No there weren't any eggs yet. Then she was startled to see her husband turn pale and apparently have some sort of a fit.

"But," he got out, finally, "Chester and Vantine haven't done a thing all the way across the lake but talk about the fresh eggs they are going to have and the fried chicken dinner I am to set up Sunday! Why, those hens have got to lay—"

"Now, Henry!" said his wife, awake at last to the emergency, "they'll never know the difference! I got real nice eggs from the grocer who sends a wagon around, and I've no doubt he can sell chickens, too!"

"Well, for goodness' sake, don't let the fellows know they're not from our place!" gasped McQueen, in agonized relief.

He exploined the apparent paucity of hens to his friends by saying that he had sent back a lot that weren't satisfactory, and then he gave color to his fiction about his chicken yard by giving the man of all work lavish orders as to placing chicken wire.

McQueen, still nervous from his narrow escape resolved when he got back to town to buy and ship all the available live poultry, so he might breathe in peace. Vantine and Chester went back shouting praises of their chicken dinner and their breakfast omelets. Then the rush began. So many friends wanted to drop over to Michigan with McQueen that it looked as though he would have to issue checks.

"Fresh eggs and real home-grown chickens sounds good to us," they would say, plaintively.

McQueen neglected his business hunting up material for his fatal chicken yard. He tried artfully to talk the virtues of lake bass and butcher's meat and breakfast bacon, while his hens were so busy getting acquainted with their new home that they did not attend to their duties, but everybody put up protesting hands.

"What!" they would exclaim. "No fish, no bacon for us. We came over here especially for fresh eggs and friend chicken! No steak, thank you."

So the McQueens squandered untold gold on the grocery boy and scoured the countryside for eggs. All of McQueen's week-ends resolved themselves into nightmares of showing determined guests about his chicken yard. He never got time to go anywhere else. All of Mrs. McQueen's midweeks were devoted to hunting up a fresh supply of eggs and chickens to feed to the week-end crowd. She couldn't have any of their own chickens killed, because they were supposed to lay eggs.

By fall McQueen had bought ten different kinds of food warranted to make hens lay and none of which did; had invested in six different brands of chickens, each warranted better than the last, none of which were; had spent a fortune on day labor and rolls of chicken wire and carpenters for the henhouse and paid so much money for eggs and froilers that his blood curdled to his toes when his wife showed him the bill.

"I kept count," she said. "We had just 30 eggs of our own all summer long from 250 hens. Now, what are you going to do with them this winter, when we go back to Chicago?"

"Do with them!" exclaimed McQueen. "I'm going to poison the lot, or else sell them to some greenhorn, who is fool enough to think he wants a chicken yard! And, Angelina McQueen, if you serve chicken in any form to me during the next six months or bring a soft-boiled egg within gunshot of me, I'll not be answerable for the consequences! I'm a desperate man!"

"You needn't worry," said his wife. "I'm kind of tired of chickens, myself."

ENVOY WILSON ASSAILS BRITISH

May Be Discharged for Denial of Responsibility for Speech to Huerta.

LIND TO SEE HUERTA TODAY?

President's Representative Partly Explains His Trip to Gamboa at Second Conference at Mexico City.

Washington, Aug. 14.—It was learned by the United States government that foreign governments generally will do nothing to embarrass the peace plans of President Wilson toward Mexico, and are inclined to support them.

Henry Lane Wilson, whose resignation as ambassador to Mexico recently was accepted, to take effect October 14, issued a statement attacking, as at variance with British tradition, the reported statement of the British foreign office that recognition of the Huerta government had been extended by Great Britain after Mr. Wilson had made "a congratulatory speech" to the provisional president.

May Dismiss Envoy Wilson.

President Wilson read the ambassador's statement and was so incensed at its tone and contents that he promptly requested Secretary Bryan to ascertain through the British embassy here whether the utterance of the British foreign office as reported was correct, and last night the dismissal of Ambassador Wilson by summary acceptance of his resignation to take effect immediately was under consideration by the administration.

Dispatches from John Lind, personal representative in Mexico of President Wilson, indicated that he was in personal touch with Federico Gamboa, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, and was preparing to submit the representations of the United States on the restoration of peace in Mexico.

Japan's declination to receive Gen. Felix Diaz as special ambassador from President Huerta was officially confirmed here.

To Discuss Statement.

Today Secretary Bryan and President Wilson will discuss the reported statement of the British foreign office that Great Britain recognized the Huerta government only provisionally, pending an election, and that Great Britain, France and Germay had accorded recognition after "a congratulatory speech" to President Huerta by Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, dean of the diplomatic corps in Mexico City.

Lind May See Huerta Today.

Mexico City, Aug. 14.—John Lind took up his official residence in the American embassy. There is a feeling here that President Huerta and Mr. Lind may meet today.

ALLEGED SLAYER IS FREED

Gust Penman, Arrested for Violating Auto Law, Released.

Champaign, Ill., Aug. 14.—Gust Penman, for whom a warrant charging the murder of Harold A. Shaw of Urbana has been issued, is believed by some to have taken his own life. Deputy Sheriff A. M. Evans returned from Danville, bringing the yellow car. It was learned that when Gust Penman reached Danville Sunday night he was arrested for failure to have a tail light burning. He said:

"My name is Harold Shaw. I have only $10. I will use it to go home, and I wil lleave the car for security." Penman boarded a Wabash train going east.

After two bullets were found in the head of Harold Shaw, whose body was found in a rude grave on the Penman farm, a coroner's jury returned a verdict that Shaw had been shot by Gust Penman. The theory that Penman, after killing Harold Shaw, intended to murder the young man's father is based on the visit by Penman to the Shaw home in Urbana, scarcely an hour after Harold Shaw was killed.

Penman wanted Mr. Shaw to buy back the yellow racing car, which Penman said Harold Shaw had sold to him, and drive Penman home to Philo, returning to Urbana with the car. Mr. Shaw refused.

FIGHT HALTS TARIFF BILL

Discussion of Proposed Free Listing of Wheat Blocks Progress.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Discussion of the agricultural schedule and the proposed free listing of wheat in particular, enlivened the tariff discussion in the senate, Senator Gronna of North Dakota proposing in lieu of free wheat a duty of six cents a bushel.

Action on the amendment was deferred owing to prolonged debate. A Democratic caucus has been called when plans for expediting the bill will be discussed and a proposal will be made for an agreement that a recess of congress be taken until November 1, after the passage of the tariff bill in the senate and the currency bill in the house.

Escapes From Jail Second Time.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Aug. 14.—James Bolinski escaped from the county jail by picking the lock of his cell and sawing through the bars in a corridor window. An alleged burglar, he is wanted for breaking jail at Waupaca, Wis.

AMBOY

Amboy, Aug. 12—Edwin Coates, who has been a patient at the hospital, expects to go to his home Sunday. He will be unable to return to work, however, for some time. A few weeks ago he had the misfortune to break his leg in two places while riding his motorcycle, in a collision with an auto.

A good program has been arranged for the Lee county teachers' institute to be held here this month. No doubt many teachers will attend the meeting.

E. L. King and wife of Lee Center returned Monday from the Assembly.

Mrs. Minnie Hupach is still a patient at the hospital, but is improving slowly.

Mrs. J. Ayres and daughter, Mrs H. Mellen of New York City were in Dixon last week.

Will Jamison is here from Morrison to spend his vacation with his mother, Mrs. D. M. Jamison. He is employed at the I. N. U. offices in Morrison.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Brink and Miss Janette Vaughan returned Monday from two weeks' vacation in Wisconsin.

Mrs. W. Dewey is much improved since her recent illness.

Mrs. Honeycutt will entertain the Arbutus Embroidery club at her home Thursday of this week with a scramble supper. Members are cordially invited.

Mrs. Foy Brown and son Malcomb of endota are here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Zeek.

Rev. Appelman and family are enjoying their vacation in the east with relatives.

Mr. Lippincott of Lee Center was here today.

Mrs. C. C. Kost has gone to Jacksonville for ten days' visit with her son Byron and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dinwiddie.

TO BE SEEN IN A CEMETERY

All Kinds and Descriptions of Misguided Persons There in Their Last Resting Place.

Take a walk through the cemetery alone and you will pass the resting place of a man who blew into the muzzle of a gun to see if it was loaded. A little farther down the slope is a crank who tried to show how close he could stand to a moving train while it passed. In strolling about you see the monument of the hired girl who tried to start the fire with kerosene, and a grass-covered knoll that covers the boy who put a cob under the mule's tail. That tall shaft over a man who blew out the gas, casts a shadow over the boy who tried to get on a moving train. Side by side the pretty creature who always had her corset laced on the last hole and the intelligent idiot who rode a bicycle nine miles in ten minutes sleep unmolested. At repose is a doctor who took a dose of his own medicine. There with a top of a shoe box driven over his head is a rich old man who married a young wife. Away over there reposes a boy who went fishing on Sunday, and the woman who kept strychnine powders in the cupboard. The man who stood in front of the mowing machine to oil the sickle is quiet now and rests beside the careless brakeman who fed himself to the seventy-ton engine, and near by may be seen the grave of the man who tried to whip the editor.—Pike County Post.

Advice to Consumptives.

The only safe course for a person suffering from consumption is to select a good physician, and be guided in all things by that physician's advice.

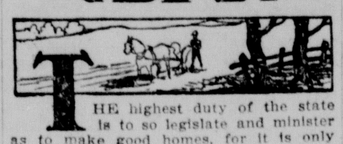

If a new cure is discovered during your illness your doctor will know it. If the cure is genuine he will know that and be the first to insist on applying the new remedy to your case. If the so-called cure is a fake his caution will save you from wasting valuable time and strength pursuing will-o'-the-wisps.

Meantime, while waiting on new discoveries, he will keep you on the commonplace, but effective prescription of rests, plentiful diet, and all the fresh air there is. This regime has cured tens of thousands of cases of tuberculosis, and will cure hundreds of thousands more.

Jenny Lind's California Debut.

At Monterey, Cal., formerly a part of Mexico, and ceded to the United States during the Mexican war, is the first public building built in California and now a broken-down, weather-racked ruin of adobe, relates the Health Magazine. In this building Jenny Lind made her first California debut, and when the gold the enthusiastic miners had thrown upon the stage after her performance was gathered up it was found to fill two five-gallon oil cans—about twenty pounds of gold, and equal in value to about $5,000. Another curious building is a police station which is built within the braces of an oil derrick, and for unique buildings certainly establishes a record.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

THE highest duty of the state is to so legislate and minister as to make good homes, for it is only a larger home, and for the same uses, that the state exists. —Ellen Richards.

DOG DAY DISHES.

In these sultry August days we enjoy and look for the cooling foods and beverages. It is well during this hot weather to avoid heavy desserts and use seasonable fruits in abundance.

Cocoanut Mousse.—Dissolve a teaspoonful of powdered gelatine in two tablespoonfuls of water, add half a cup of boiling milk, cool and add a cupful of cocoanut, three tablespoonfuls of orange juice and two cupfuls of whipped cream. Pour the mixture into a chilled mold, pack in ice and salt for four hours. Garnish with whipped cream.

Cheese Custard.—Beat four eggs, add half a cupful of boiling milk, three tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, season with salt and pepper and put into buttered timbale molds. Stand the molds in a sauce pan and let the water come to half an inch from the top; simmer very gently until the mixture is firm. Serve on rounds of buttered toast.

Lamb Cutlets.—Lay six slices of fat bacon in a frying pan, a diced turnip, a sliced onion and a sliced carrot, a little grated nutmeg and a few spigs of parsley; then on top lay six lamb cutlets, a half cup of orange juice and enough stock to cover. Put on the lid and cook slowly until the cutlets are tender. Remove the sauce pan and let the contents cool. When the cutlets are cold press them between plates. Drain the liquor and dissolve two tablespoonfuls of gelatine in it. When it begins to harden, pour a little of it into a dish, lay the cutlets close together in this and put the rest of the jelly on top. Allow it to stand on ice for three hours. Mix a pint of cooked peas with half a pint of the aspic jelly and set away to harden. Unmold the cutlets, cut them with a sharpened cutter, arrange on a platter in a circle with the jellied peas in the center.

Junket is a most delicious dessert for a hot day. Add a tablet of rennin to a quart of milk, sweetened and flavored to taste and heated just luke warm. Stir well. It is well to crush the tablet and dissolve it in a tablespoonful of water. Then set the junket away to thicken. Serve with or without whipped cream.

The KITCHEN CABINET

THE rivers eat their banks,
The tides devour the sand,
The morning sun drinks up the mists,
The ocean eats the land;
Taxes eat up property,
And pride eats out the soul—
But moths the diet record hold,
Because they eat a hole!

—Priscilla Leonard.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To outwit the moth, brush the furs or clothing put into the bags or wrapping and into the box or drawer set an uncorked two-ounce bottle of chloform. This will not only kill the moths, but any eggs which may be in the garments.

Lemon jelly, or in fact any gelatine jellies may be remolded if they are carefully softened by heat. Do not allow the mixture to boil, or it will ruin the flavor. Pour into wet molds and chill.

Melted ice may be used in cakes, cookies and puddings. Chocolate ice cream, with the addition of a little gelatine, may be molded and served as a jelly.

Never throw away even a very small piece of soap. Save all the laundry soap in one dish, the toilet soap in another. The toilet soap may be melted in a little water and cornmeal stirred into it to make a good soap for the hands. The laundry soap, after melting, may be poured into molds to harden and the cakes may then be used for dish washing.

Every one knows how annoying and often destructive rocking chairs may be, used on a rug or carpet with heavy nap. If the rocker is used on a rug and the nap sends the chair toward the walls or other furniture, turn the rug so that the nap runs the other way.

A piece of burlap the size of a tea towel is fine to keep the stove rubbed up. It may be dampened and is thick enough to save the hands.

A blacking box is enough to try the patience of a saint or a man. The cover is so attached to the box that it is hard to pry them apart. When once open, put the blacking in a large topped cold cream jar with a screw top, then there will be no trouble about getting the top off. A piece of eider down makes a good polisher.

PRESIDENT WILSON ON RURAL CREDITS

Chief Executive Expresses Views in Statement Issued From the White House.

NEW BANKING SYSTEM NEEDED

Special Machinery of a Distinct Method of Financeering Must be Provided If Farmers Are to Be Successfully Supplied.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The president has issued a statement announcing that he believed it not advisable to amend the administration currency measure at present with provision for rural credits, and urged postponing that phase of banking reforms until the December session, when the government commission now studying the subject in Europe will have returned.

Insurgents Are Confident.

Democratic "insurgents" on the currency question, however, after the caucus had spent more than five hours discussing it, were confident they would obtain material amendments looking to the providing of money to farmers.

The president said:

"Again and again during the discussing of the currency bill it has been urged that special provision should be made in it for the facilitation of such credits as the farmers of the country most stand in need of—agricultural credit as distinguished from ordinary commercial and industrial credits.

"Such proposals were not adopted because such credits could be only imperfectly provided for in such a measure. The scope and character of the bill, its immediate and chief purpose, could not be made to reach as far as the special interests of the farmer require.

Special System Needed.

"Special machinery and a distinct system of banking must be provided for if rural credits are to be successfully and adequately supplied. A government commission is now in Europe studying the interesting and highly successful methods which have been employed in several countries of the old world and its report will be made to congress at a regular session next winter.

"It is confidently to be expected that the congress will at that session act upon the recommendations of that report and establish a complete and adequate system of rural credits. There is no subject more important to the welfare of the industrial development of the United States; there is no reform in which I would myself feel it a greater honor or privilege to take part, because I should feel that it was a service to the whole country of the first magnitude and significance. It should have accompanied and gone hand in hand with the reform of our banking and currency system if we had been ready to act wisely and with full knowledge of what we were about.

Too Little Aid to Farmer.

"There has been too little federal legislation framed to serve the farmer directly and with a deliberate adjustment to his real needs. We long ago fell into the habit of assuming that the farmers of America enjoyed such an immense natural advantage over the farmers of the rest of the world, were so intelligent and so enterprising and so at ease upon the incomparable soils of our great continent that they could feed the world and prosper, no matter what handicap they carried, no matter what circumstances they labored under. We have not exaggerated their capacity or their opportunity, but we have neglected to analyze the burdensome disadvantages from which they were suffering and have too often failed to remove them when we did see what they were.

"Our farmers must have means afforded them of handling their financial needs; easily and inexpensively. They should be furnished these facilities before their enterprises languish, not afterward.

"And they will be. This is our next great task and duty. Not only is a government commission about to report which is charged with apprising the congress of the best methods yet employed in this matter, but the department of agriculture has also undertaken a serious and systematic study of the whole problem of rural credits. The congress and the executive, working together, will cerainly afford the needed machinery relief and prosperity to the peopel of the countrysides, and that very soon."

General discussion on the measure in the caucus will continue, and it is probable that the bill will be before the caucus for at least the remainder of the week.

Rockford Man and Former Chicagoan Lose Lives in Indiana.

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 14.—An auto driven by Edward Rogge, a farmer north of here, and carrying Theodore Klatt, Rockford, Ill., and August Johnson, who recently moved here from Chicago, skidded on the street car tracks and overturned. Klatt and Johnson died of their injuries. Rogge was seriously hurt.

HOLDEN PLANS TO PUT ALFALFA ON EVERY FARM

Plan to Unite All Interests in Nation-Wide Campaign for the General Growing of Alfalfa.

Extension Department to Aid Any Community Interested in Conducting Campaign to Encourage the Growing of Alfalfa—No More Difficult to Grow Than Clover and Gives Double the Yield

Alfalfa Automobile Trains Important Feature of the Work—Schedules to Be Arranged and Meetings to Be Held at Farm Homes—Prominent Speakers to Accompany Each Alfalfa Train—Alfalfa Organizations Will Be Formed In Each Community to Promote the Work—Field Men Experienced in Alfalfa Growing Will Follow Up Preliminary Work Where Requested and Give Aid in Getting a Start—Professor P. G. Holden, Director Extension Department, International Harvester Company, Chicago, Will Direct the Work.

Campaign work with automobiles to begin early in April and extend into the late fall. County and city superintendents of schools, colleges, institute workers, Chautauqua lecturers, and others interested in the work will be assisted in obtaining alfalfa charts and lantern slides. Alfalfa literature and booklets will be given wide distribution throughout the country. Special alfalfa articles will be sent to farm journals and magazines, and plate and matrix pages to newspapers. Alfalfa editions of newspapers will be published where campaigns are conducted. Dates will be arranged for "Alfalfa Day" in the schools. The campaign will be conducted in co-operation with farmers' institutes, bankers, business men, commercial clubs, granges, live stock and dairy associations in any community where the people are anxious to improve their conditions agriculturally and are willing to give their time and money for an enthusiastic campaign.

Work to be started immediately in the Corn and Cotton Belt States and in the East. Thirty to forty meetings will be held in each county, the number depending on local conditions.

To accomplish the most in agricultural development, we must begin with the man behind the crop. Upon him depends the final working out of the principles of agriculture—the simple and practical things—which our schools, colleges and experiment stations are endeavoring to bring into general use.

Professor Holden proposes to carry these principles further even than the very effective work done on the agricultural trains, by using that most modern vehicle—the automobile—going directly to the people on their own farms where the meetings are to be held.

Agricultural development needs in addition to the work of our public institutions, the individual efforts of every merchant, banker, corporation, or laboring man, and this plan calls for their heartiest co-operation.

This plan for increasing the yields of our crops by the more extensive growing of that wonderful soil improver, ALFALFA, is meeting the approval of all men who have any knowledge of the beneficial results of its introduction as a general crop.

Campaigns are now being organized in five different states, and Professor Holden is daily answering requests for his assistance in organizing other localities, and invites cordial co-operation with every community interested.

ALFALFA PROVERBS

By Charles M. Carroll.

Alfalfa enriches the ground.
Alfalfa is a drought resister.
Alfalfa is the best soil doctor.
Alfalfa adds humus to the soil.
Alfalfa increases the milk flow.
Alfalfa is high in feeding value.
Alfalfa balances the corn ration.
Grow your protein—don't buy it.
Alfalfa sod grows larger corn crops.
Alfalfa is the greatest of all subsoilers.
Alfalfa has no equal as a hog pasture.
Alfalfa keeps stock in good condition.
Alfalfa should be grown on every farm.
An alfalfa field is a hog's idea of heaven.
Fox tail is the greatest enemy of alfalfa.
Growing alfalfa is good business farming.
Alfalfa means more money and better homes.
Raise what you feed and feed what you raise.
Alfalfa does things and never loafs on the job.
Alfalfa with a fair chance always makes good.
Alfalfa fills the hay mow and pays for the privilege.
Alfalfa is the cheapest and best feed for beef cattle.
Alfalfa insures larger yields from the crops that follow.
Alfalfa contains more protein per ton than clover or corn.
Alfalfa is the agricultural wonder of the twentieth century.
Alfalfa yields from two to three times as much as clover or timothy, and is more valuable hay.

Alfalfa is being successfully grown in every agricultural county in New York, and on at least one farm in nearly every township. It is possible to grow it on some part of practically every farm in the state.

The Center of Grain Production.

The figures of the last census, when compared with those of the previous census reports back in 1850, indicate that the movement of the production of grain under natural conditions has reached its western limit. Since 1850 the "median point" (center) of production of the six great crops—corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, and buckwheat—was about 20 miles west-southwest of Burlington, Iowa; but its western movement in the last ten years was comparatively very small. It remains to be seen what effect the great irrigation work now planned by the government will have upon the location of the great grain fields of the country.

No Hay So Good as Alfalfa.

There is no other hay so good as alfalfa for all kinds of live stock, and for horses and hogs alfalfa is invaluable, either as a hay, a soiling crop, or a pasture. It excels as a hog pasture, and, with hogs, makes one of the most profitable farm combinations. An alfalfa field is said to be a hog's idea of heaven.

In root growth alfalfa resembles red clover, but sends down a stronger tap root. When properly handled it produces three or four cuttings each year and remains productive for many years. Land which is adapted to red clover usually grows alfalfa when any lack of inoculation and of lime is supplied.

Alfalfa does best when sown alone. Many failures are due to sowing it with oats or barley. These take so much water from the soil that the alfalfa dies.

Alfalfa growing marks the highest development in our modern agriculture.

"Alfalfa is the richest hay food known."—J. W. Spillman.

Alfalfa excels every other crop.

WINNING A WELCOME

By BLANCHE HARPER.

"Well, what have you there?" exclaimed Mrs. Morton as Marjory, all out of breath, entered the room.

"Wait and see," mysteriously answered her daughter as she undid the wrapping paper.

"A canary!" cried Mrs. Morton. "What will you bring home next? Where and how did you get this bird?"

"Dorothy sent for me this morning and said that although she was all ready to go to Atlantic City she couldn't leave until she knew that her bird would be cared for during the summer. Her relatives absolutely refused to take the poor thing, and she declared that if I was any kind of a friend this was my opportunity to prove it. So what could I do?"

"But, my dear, we never owned a bird. We don't understand anything about their food, drink, bath or habits. And every one says a bird is a dreadful care—they're always catching cold or molting or something."

"I know. I told Dorothy all that and so she gave me written instructions, cautioning me to follow them implicitly.

"Listen!" said Marjory, unfolding a slip of paper. "Bath Mondays and Thursdays. Cage to be covered at 8:30 each evening. Small lettuce leaf Mondays and Wednesdays. Sliced apple on Tuesdays. Fresh seed and water daily. Cage cleaned daily. And 1,000 other directions."

"It's an imposition!" declared Mrs. Morton. "It's not necessary for Dorothy to promenade the boardwalk at Atlantic City while we sit at home and worry over her pet."

After Morton had worked an hour that evening adjusting a bracket for the cage he said peevishly: "One does impose on one's friends abominably. Here we have a rank outsider simply thrust upon us through no fault of our own. Some people have—well, what you might call nerve."

At eight o'clock the next morning Marjory's brother Bert came to breakfast with a scowling face.

"Where did that blooming bird hail from?" he demanded. "He has kept me awake since five o'clock with his everlasting singing."

Marjory's married sister soon ran in with her pet kitten, as was her custom. She was greeted with a scream from Marjory. "Mildred, don't you dare to step into this house with that cat! Can't you see Dorothy's bird? Please, please go home—quick!"

"Very well," answered Mildred in icy tones. "If you care more for Dorothy's silly bird than for me and my darling Mopsy we shall not trouble you any more with our unwelcome presence." Then the irate sister marched out of the room.

"I wish I had never seen that horrid bird or Dorothy, either!" lamented Marjory.

After two months' absence Dorothy returned and claimed her canary. The first evening after the bird's departure Marjory noticed that both her father and her mother kept gazing at the empty bracket where the bird had swung and sung.

Presently Bert exclaimed: "It beats all how empty this house seems without that bird!"

Marjory wiped away a tear. "I've had the blues all day," she said. "I've missed Dickie so. If Dorothy had been the least bit appreciative she would have let me keep him a few weeks longer, anyhow."

The next morning Morton on his way to his office stopped at a bird store and purchased a canary.

Mrs. Morton, before keeping her appointment at the dressmaker's, went to a bird dealer's and purchased a canary.

Bert, recollecting the empty bracket, on his return from business dropped in at a department store and purchased a canary.

Marjory, by this time firmly believing that no family is complete without a bird, took her savings and purchased a canary.

That evning each member of the family entered the dining room carrying a bird cage. Then they all beheld a canary in a cage that was hanging on the bracket. There was a card attached to the hook. On it Dorothy had written: "I hope this bird will partly take the place of the one you so lovingly cared for."

"Let's keep them all!" exclaimed Marjory.

"All but one," amended Mrs. Morton. "Mildred confided to me this morning that she has given Mopsy away, as she thinks she would rather have a bird than a kitten for a pet."—Chicago Daily News.

Their Wish

"I wish," said Inglesby, "that we didn't have to go!"

"So do I!" agreed his wife, shamelessly.

As the party was given in their honor their attitude was all the more reprehensible.

"Our very first evening at home!" mourned Mrs. Inglesby.

They had been married two months and were just back from their wedding trip.

"Of course, Tom and his wife mean well," conceded Inglesby, "but you'd think they would realize we didn't care a hang about rushing out into society the instant we stepped off the train and before we'd really seen our own apartments!"

"We were supposed to get back last week," said Mrs. Inglesby, who wished to be fair.

"What if we were?" exploded her husband. "What's a week at home? I'm tired of running around!"

"So'm I!" said Mrs. Inglesby. "That reading lamp is a dear—I wish we could sit by it and you'd read to me, angel!"

"I'd like to, darling," said Inglesby mournfully. "What a bore a card party is! And there's my smoking jacket!"

"And that sweet lace and silk negligee I bought in Paris!" half wept Mrs. Inglesby. "I'd love to put it on!"

"You'd be a peach in it!" asserted Inglesby. "And to think we're prevented being comfortable and doing as we'd like just because of fool notions of fool friends of ours who insist on welcoming us home! Can't we cut it?"

"Mercy, no!" said his wife. "There are to be 15 tables and a gorgeous supper! And in our honor!"

"I'd rather stay at home and eat rarebit that you made," said Inglesby. "Consarn the luck!"

"It does seem ridiculous," said Mrs. Inglesby, rising from the table. "I wonder what I'd better wear."

"You look prettier than anyone else in anything you have!" said Inglesby valiantly. "It doesn't make any difference what you wear! Wear a kitchen apron or a raincoat and you'll beat all the other women there!"

"Goose!" said Mrs. Inglesby. "I don't care what other people say if only you think I look nice."

"You always look nice," said Inglesby. "My, but that rocker does seem comfortable! And my smoking stand so handy to it!"

"It's just a shame!" agreed his wife. "And you hate so to get into evening clothes! I'll put the studs and links in your shirt!"

"You are an angel," said her husband, and kissed her. "Why can't we stay at home when all I want is to talk to you?"

"It is funny," said his wife. "I don't seem to take a bit of interest in talking to any one else. I'm perfectly contented to be just with you. Well, I suppose I might as well dress. I guess I'll wear my lavender marquisette and pearls."

"You'll knock the spots off 'em," said her husband. "Where's my white ties?"

"Society is a perfect bore," mourned Mrs. Inglesby. "I shall hate the whole evening! It is just wasted!"

"It spoils our return home," said her husband. "Our first evening, when we wanted to look over all the wedding presents and realize that we were among our very own things! What's the good of a man's having a home and a wife if he isn't to be allowed to enjoy them in peace? I'd like to give Tom a piece of my mind!"

"It's pure selfishness on their part," said Mrs. Inglesby, dusting powder on her nose. "I could cry when I think of it!"

"What's Tom's new number?" inquired her husband as he got into his dress coat.

"I'll look on the invitation," said his wife as she rustled into the living room in her lavender gown.

There was an instant's silence and then a little shriek.

"Jack!" she cried, "I made a mistake in my date! It isn't tonight! It's a week from tonight! And I've got this lovely dress on and everything! If that isn't horrid!"

"Well, I'll be blowed!" said Inglesby, disgustedly. "And me in these glad togs, and that tie is tied right, if I do say it! I'd kind of liked to see everybody tonight!"

"Well, there's nothing to do but stay home, I suppose," said Mrs. Inglesby, dolefully. "What a shame!"

"Yes, isn't it?" said Inglesby, sadly.

Highway Humor.

In a little commune in Brabant is to be seen a big notice board at the entrance of the town. On it appears the following notice to automobilists: "100 kilometers an hour." When we know that 100 kilometers equals 75 miles it scarcely need be added that the wit of the commune has added a nought to the notice. At Dinant a board is to be seen on a good level road recommending motorists the "allure d'un petit chevel ordinaire au petit trot." But the palm for original notices, we learn, belongs to a little English town. On the board one reads: "Please drive slowly." Fifteen hundred yards further on is another board, bearing the words, "Thank you." As the French journal from which we take our story observes, it is an exquisite example of politeness.—London Globe.

DAINTIEST OF BIRD'S NESTS

Maple Leaf of Ordinary Size Will Conceal the Home of the Humming Bird.

The most exquisitely dainty home built by the bill and feet of birds is that of the ruby throated humming bird, says a writer in the Craftsman. When completed it is scarcely larger than an English walnut and is usually saddled on a small horizontal limb of a tree or shrub frequently many feet from the ground. It is composed almost entirely of soft plant fibers, fragments of spiders' webs sometimes being used to hold them in shape. The sides are thickly studded with bits of lichen, and practiced indeed is the eye of the man who can distinguish it from a knot on the limb. The eggs are the size of quinine pills.

Although the humming bird's nest is exceedingly frail, there appears to be nothing on record to show that any great numbers of them come to grief during the summer rains. It is, however, not called upon for a long tenure of occupancy. Within three weeks after the two little white eggs are laid the young have departed on their tiny pinions.

Emily Bronte's Poems Sold.

One can imagine the sardonic smile with which Emily Bronte might receive the tidings that five of her unpublished poems have been sold for $195. For, when the three sisters, heedless of "repeated warnings of various respectable publishers"—as Charlotte records—"committed the rash act of printing a volume of poems," the receipts cannot have totaled much more than 39 pence. In the space of a year the publisher disposed of just two copies! The rest of the edition was distributed gratis to friends or sold as waste paper.

How They Say Good Night

Good-night is a very simple combination of two simple words, and ordinarily it is very easy to say it. You hear it everywhere, and on the lips of everybody.

But there are times in a man's life when it is a most stupendous undertaking to say good-night.

When he has been to visit the lodestar of his affections, and pater familias and his wife have become tired out, and gone discreetly to bed, and the grateful music of their snoring is coming refreshingly down the stairway, mingled with the sound of the clock on the church steeple slowly striking the hour of midnight, then the ordeal begins.

He knows it is time to say good-night, and go; but he dreads it awfully, and would fain put far off the dreadful moment. And she feels just the same. She knows that her eyes will be red next day from loss of sleep, and that she will feel like "a stewed witch," however that may be; and he realizes just how all the columns of figures he is always adding will run together next day, and how the "old man" will snort when he finds him napping over the ledger, and how the boys in the office will quote love-sick poetry to him, and otherwise make themselves as infernally disagreeable as they know.

He rises at last with the firm determination in his heart that he will say it, and have it over.

"Mabel, dear, I must go. It is awfully late, and your dear little head ought to have been on the pillow long ago. I am such a thoughtless, selfish fellow. I must say good-night and let you get a bit of sleep, before the sun rises. Well, good-night——"

Then she looks at him, and she says:

"Archie, must you? Oh, dear, it isn't late at all. It's only just a little wee bit past eleven, and I haven't said half what I wanted to. I had lots and lots of things to tell you, and—"

"It is after midnight, darling, and your pa has stopped snoring, and I heard him clearing his throat just now, as if he were preparing to say something."

"Oh, Archie, don't you mind about dad. He's got a throat trouble, and he clears his pipes a good deal. He'll doze off in a minute. Must you go? Well, good-n-i-g-h-t."

"Yes, dear, good-night. Oh, don't come out in the chill night air. You might get cold, and I should never forgive myself, never. Well, good-night."

"Good-night, Archie. Would you really and truly care if I should be ill?"

"My dearest! I should die if anything happened to you! Well, good-night; and, hark! Was that your father calling you?"

"No, indeed! That was the cat down cellar. I don't believe you would care very much if I should go into a decline and die. You'd go right off after a little, and marry that hateful-red-headed Kate Stirling; and I detest the sight of her. Well, good-night!"

"Mabel, you know I wouldn't look at Kate Stirling! Old freckle-faced thing! You little goose, you! Well, really, I must go now. That is 1 o'clock, by Jove! Well, good-night."

By this time he has got his arm around her, and is holding her hand in his, to give him courage to speak the distressing words of farewell. And she clings to his coat button, and twists it so bewitchingly that he isn't mortal if he does not respond in some way; and all you people who have been lovers know just how he does it.

"Well, good-night, Archie. I shall not see you again for two whole days, I suppose," and she heaves a deep-drawn sigh, which gives him the idea that it is all she can do to bear it.

"Two eternities!" he cries in despair; "but, then, I can stop a moment Tuesday morning when I go past."

"Oh, can you? How perfectly lovely! Well, if you must go, good-night."

"Are you cold, dear? I thought you shivered. Mabel, do take care of yourself, love. Oh, how I long for the day when you will be all my own, and I can shield you from every wind that blows. But I must go. Well, good-night."

"It is so early yet, Archie; but, then, if you want to go, why, I won't say anything more. Good-night."

"Mabel, if you look at me like that, I shall never be able to tear myself away! You are not offended with you? Archie, are you, love? No, I thought you could not be so cruel! And I really must go now; so good-night, good-night."

And as the sonorous notes of the old man's snoring rise and fall on the still air, Archie goes away nearly broken-hearted for a minute, but directly he lights a cigar, and feels reconciled.

And Mabel locks the door behind him, and goes upstairs in her stocking feet, and puts her hair in papers, and dons the old gloves she sleeps in to keep her hands soft, and wonders if it ever was so hard for anybody to say good-night as it is for her and Archie.

Positively Brutal.
